

Student Art Show

The DC Commission on the Arts and Humanities, in partnership with DC Public Charter Schools and DC Public Schools issued a citywide call for student art work. Art Instructors submitted the top works created during this school year, and of those, 42 works are on display at the Historical Society of Washington DC. A panel of jurors will select 10 works to be added the Commission's Art Bank Collection, a collection of over 2000 works placed in public corridors of District Government agencies. This collection supports the local artist community while preserving the city's rich art legacy for future generations.
